USA AND IRAQ: UNSPOKEN TRUTHS

STRATEGY: KEEP THE PUBLIC IGNORANCE

After the attacks of 11 September 2001 by Al Qaeda against various US targets, in which the Twin Towers were destroyed in New York, President George W. Bush attributed to the regime of President Saddam Hussein to be complicit in the terrorist group led by the Saudi Osama Bin Laden.
To justify entering the war against Iraq, the US government claimed, relying on various espionage reports, that Saddam Hussein, in defiance of international treaties, had begun the construction of weapons of mass destruction (chemical or atomic). The UN inspections in Iraq, however, did not provide any confirmation.
